

Municipal Requirements for Electricians

As of September 1, 2004, a person may not perform electrical work unless the person holds an appropriate license issued or recognized under Chapter 1305 of the Texas Occupations Code. Consequently, all electricians (subject to the Act) must be licensed by the state or hold a municipal/regional electricians license recognized by the state. Additionally, the Department adopted the National Electrical Code, 2002 Edition (as it existed August 2, 2001) as the state code.

The following list was compiled with information and assistance from the local jurisdictions. It is intended as a quick online reference for the local electrical code requirements and other municipal licensing/registration requirements that may be required of electricians in addition to the state requirements.

All municipalities are invited to provide us with information regarding their local electrical requirements. The list includes only those cities who have responded to our questionnaire. The questionnaire can be downloaded from this link and updated information and/or corrections may be faxed to TDLR at (512) 475-2886 or

All information is subject to change and TDLR does not guarantee its accuracy.

Specific questions regarding municipal licensing requirements should be directed to the appropriate local jurisdiction.
